

Tropicals of the World

Tropics around the World

Tropical Animals

Jaguar

Toco Toucan

Multimedia
By: Lance

Tropical

The tropical rainforest is a hot, moist are in South America, Africa, and Southeast Asia. Tropical rainforests contain the greatest Biodiversity in the world. There are more than 15 million different species that live in the Tropicals.

Tropical Plants

This photo shows bright colored foliage Caladium

This is a sugar apple

Tourist Information

- The best time for a tourist to visit the tropics is anytime because it usually stays the same temperature year round.
- A tourist that is visiting here should wear shorts and long sleeve shirts because it is hot and with long sleeves you won't get many scratches on your arms.
- Visitors that are visiting here could do a lot of scouting on different types of different animal species.

Facts on The Tropicals

Average temperatures in the tropics are usually between 75 and 80 degrees Fahrenheit.

Tropical areas cover 6-7 percent of the Earth.

In the tropical climate, there is about 400 inches of rain a year.

Cacao, coffee, and Lianas are products in these areas.